

The Crime and the Crime (March 3, 2013 – July 3, 2015)

Kamil woke up beside his mother telling something. Kamil was almost asleep when he opened the door and went to the corridor where he rang the door bell of the opposite flat. He did not know that he was a visitor to people which were not his relatives. When the door opened slowly someone turned the light on and Kamil was hit on the head by someone who was standing behind him.

When he woke up again day light almost blinded him. He was lying on the bed and some people were standing around. He did not know who it was. The people then left the room and he was lying on the bed waiting what comes next. After a while, the door opened and a woman poked from outside and told Kamil to come up. She was speaking in an affected tone to make Kamil believe that he commit something serious. He was waiting a while again. Finally, he stood up from the bed, opened the door and he saw a group of people around him. The people then pushed and pulled Kamil from one side to the other and smiled. The smile was unbearable. Kamil ran out of the flat to the street where the pursuers followed him. He ran to the people on the street since he thought that no one can attack him among the people. Then, he climbed a tree. Pursuers were behind him and he knew that they cannot climb to him. Moreover, some people on the street saw the view. The pursuers were worried which was apparent from their faces. Then, the pursuers returned to the house of flats from which Kamil ran out a while ago. When Kamil came to the door of the flat a woman with blond hairs and blue eyes popped up in front of him and asked Kamil in a harsh tone:

“What did you do to your mother?”

“What could I do to my mother?”

“You did something to her!”

“No by a chance! I was just dreaming.”

“What was in the dream?”

“Nothing, I did not do anything to my mother.”

“Come on! What was in the dream?!”

“What was in the dream?!”

Woman repeated the question several times and Kamil did not know what to say. Finally, he made up an answer which could satisfy the woman:

“Nothing, I was just playing puzzles.”

The woman was apparently satisfied with the answer and turned away. She thought the answer was confession. Kamil understood the behaviour of the woman but he did not know what did he confess to. Moreover, he heard a man voice saying:

“Don’t let her to come to me!”

Kamil heard this sentence many times since then. Then, someone was approaching to him and Kamil ran away again in panic.

What happened next can be described as an uncertain sequence of events. Kamil returned to the flat he left but no one was present. A man pretending to be his father then came to pick him up but Kamil could not recognise him since he suffered loss of memory as a consequence of the anesthetics applied to him by his biological mother. He really could not since it was not his biological father. He was grandfather. Several days later, some people came to the flat which Kamil considered to be his family. He did not know who it was. He was glad to have someone who cared about him. Later, Kamil figured out that it is not his biological family. An adult brother was there as well. He was not even an adoptive brother but Kamil did not know that since he was never told the true. He was crook and murderer paid by Kamil’s family. He was there because of his biological mother who ordered terror on him and murder. This happened when Kamil was three-years old. Kamil did not have a clue that he was considered to be a criminal though no trial happened nor any sentence was told him.

The people and the family behaved neutral to him, from the beginning. No one let him know what happened. Kamil did not have any reason to think that he did anything wrong. But people knew something. In Kamil’s five years, the murderer tried to kill him after Kamil’s note on him. Kamil survived the attack since he pretended to be dead. The murderer feared Kamil and stopped further actions except rare events of violence against Kamil initiated by the (adult) murderer. The murderer was only pretending to be his brother. He was just rude to Kamil. These events fitted in the definition of terror tolerated due to Kamil’s biological mother and babysitter who intensified them with psychological terror. His name was changed by the babysitter before he entered the basic school in order to defame Kamil and get reasoning for further actions. In the fifth class at the basic school (in his ten years), he moved to a different part of the town he lived in.

In the new place, Kamil had many successes. He forgot the events happened in the past. He was one of the best students. Then, a new teacher came to the school. He was outstanding from the beginning. He had many philosophical ideas which Kamil admired. Then, someone cried:

“It is his father!”

Kamil said:

“It is not my father!”

The teacher cried at Kamil:

“I am your father but you don’t know about that, idiot!”

The teacher then misbehaved Kamil. Kamil did not understand the fact that he was his father since. He did not recognize him since he had a different mask. The teacher then offended Kamil many times and continued this way for several months. Then, the teacher suddenly disappeared. He wanted to humiliate and defame Kamil. He wanted to reason abandoning Kamil and cover his own crimes.

After the return of the former teacher, the situation consolidated to the previous state but Kamil’s father misbehaved him. Kamil did not know that it is the teacher who disappeared from the school. Everything calmed down as well as the Kamil’s father for a short time. It was a preface to the events which Kamil could not imagine, at the moment.

Kamil was an excellent student and football player. During his study at a top-rank high school, he entered football club where he shocked all the audience with his performance. During contest match he got the ball in the middle of the pitch and after dribble over eight contestants and several fouls from them he scored a magnificent goal lobbing over the goalie. Nobody believed that he could ever do something like that. They assumed that Kamil is mentally retarded denying that he has this aptitude. After this action, Kamil’s father ran on the pitch and gave Kamil yellow card for ridiculing contestees being a non-existing foul according to the rules of football made up by Kamil’s father in order to punish Kamil. He could not bear that Kamil excelled. Kamil was ball acrobat and the best player on the field. Kamil had really exceptional aptitude and showed it on every possible event including non-contest matches. He was able to overwhelm the audience with series of goals hitting the bar or crossbar. In his nine years, he won the bet scoring thirty goals in serie hitting the bar, then, a policeman approached the schoolmate Kamil beat and gave him money telling him to give them to Kamil ensuring him that Kamil will be charged for theft, then the policeman told the schoolmate that he should call at “the hill” being a slang term for the local police department in the city Kamil lived. Kamil’s schoolmate, then, wanted to give the money to Kamil but Kamil refused it, Kamil turned back to the schoolmate who put the money into Kamil’s pocket. Just after Kamil’s return home Kamil’s babysitter stole the prize money from Kamil and reported him as thief. Kamil stopped his football career after this single match due to his duties at high school where he had excellent marks and due to the fear of his health taking into account many fouls against him which could result in a severe injury. These fouls were arranged by the police in order to stop his career. Kamil knew these facts since other players discussed the plots against him so that he could hear it.

At high school, he had average study results, from the beginning. Then, Kamil studied hard and was getting better. He was one of the best students at the end. The behaviour of the people was changing as well. The colleagues ignored Kamil from the beginning. Then, the atmosphere was getting worse. Their behaviour cannot be described with any word. Kamil did know that he was accused of something. The worse was the fact that the classmates were at least twenty-years older than Kamil. They were adult long time before Kamil began studying at high school but did not behave in this way. They assumed that Kamil was older than he was claiming. He was really mentally older but not physically. Due to this the colleagues got self-confidence, and ill-treated and vexed him. They attacked him - verbally at the beginning, then physically, at the end. The worst situation was in the last year. One of the colleagues told Kamil that he is envious. Kamil responded:

“Whereas you are talking the true and love.”

After this sentence, the colleague jumped over the desk which he overthrew, actually, and tried to throttle Kamil with his hands. Kamil did not defend himself since the colleague did not have enough strength to injure Kamil. Kamil let him to hang on his throat and waited until other colleagues separated the attacker from him. The colleague then got the nickname Arnold after the famous actor of action movies. This outraged him even more. Kamil then looked after himself and ignored the attacker which was better for Kamil.

Several physical attacks followed. One of them started when Kamil took a biscuit from the pack lying on the desk. The colleague which owned the pack then dashed on Kamil and threw Kamil down from the desk he was sitting on. Kamil was just smiling at the scene. The colleagues then attacked teachers. They wanted them to punish Kamil. The teachers did not understand the situation. They wanted them to punish Kamil themselves. The psychosis of the crowd supported by the perception that they did a good thing did not let the colleagues to stop their actions against Kamil. They considered it to be a rightful punishment for Kamil. Kamil knew that any defence is useless, in this case. He was accused again. He did not know why. He did not know that his babysitter and biological mother was talking about him as a criminal though he was never officially accused nor convicted. It was a clear case for them. Kamil liked the babysitter and could not come to a thought that she would harm him. He did not feel guilty. He really could not since he never did anything bad, in his life. He considered these attacks as groundless. He finished the high school as top-rank student with excellent marks. He continued his studying at the university.

At the university, Kamil did excellent from the beginning. Kamil could not believe that studying could be so easy. His father was talking about him in a different way. He claimed that Kamil did not have the abilities for such school since it was considered to be one of the best mathematics and physics university. Kamil had the aptitude. He had the highest IQ in the tests for the new-coming students. It was the highest IQ ever found. Its value reached 200 points. His father did not want to admit it. Kamil felt the attitude but did not know anything specific. For Kamil, it was normal since the same behaviour he saw at the high school. The worse was the fact that Kamil could not go to the society since the crowd was claiming he is “mentally retarded” and “cheater”. They assumed that Kamil had the tests before examination. They did not understand that Kamil was in absolute isolation implying that he could not get the tests from anyone. He could not go out. He did not live in the big city nor did he have any acquaintances or friends. The attitude was always against him. Kamil could not defend himself against slandering and attacks from other people. They did even worse things in spite of the fact that he had the highest score in the tests. They were embarrassed as a consequence of Kamil’s skills. They did not cope with his pace nor did they understand his thoughts. They pointed to Kamil publicly claiming he is mentally retarded dissipating false rumours on him. To make things worse Kamil was marked with his extreme IQ at the beginning of his study. They gained absolute power disvaluing his results. Kamil could not defend himself. They passed the exams since the professors gave them the marks without examining them. On the contrary, Kamil was examined the more by them. The professors manipulated Kamil’s marks and pointed to him at public lectures. They were convinced that they get the skills and positions of Kamil in spite of the fact that Kamil had no real power. They really got these positions since Kamil was mutilated and signed as inferior and really could not defend himself. They themselves did not manage their duties expecting help from others even though they got the high positions. They had possibilities and knowledge Kamil could not even dream about. They sent a schoolmate to Kamil who cheated when he was playing desk games. They tried to defame Kamil and Kamil stroked back their attempts. He defeated his father in chess in his seven years. He defeated even chess computers. His schoolmates knew that but did not care about that. They were just angry because of Kamil claiming he is embarrassing himself. During holidays he won snooker game though he had never played snooker. He finished the game with final shot playing eight balls at the time. His competitors did not believe his skills. They accused Kamil of deceit. Then, they thought he is a professional player since they themselves were crooks. Then, the roommate was binding and narcotizing him, regularly, supported by general acceptance of the colleagues and professors since they could not bear his victories. They liked punishing and victimizing other people. Kamil almost died during these murder attempts. Kamil did not have any evidences on this. He could only surmise that it was a consequence of his extreme aptitudes. In reality, it was the consequence of mutilating initiated by his biological mother and family. Finally, Kamil described what happened at the time he lost his memory since he did not know how to protect himself against their behaviour:

“I was lying beside my mother which was talking to me. I got up and rang the door bell of the opposite flat. A fully dressed man opened the door. Then, someone turned the light on and hit me on the head from behind. I told the police that I was playing puzzles. I don’t know what happened before since I don’t remember anything. Anyone could enter the flat I was living in that time. I don’t know who had the key to the flat. Moreover, the key was not necessary since it was possible to enter the flat without it using a little trick.”

Kamil described only the facts he knew. He did not know what happened before he rang the door bell of the opposite flat. Then, Kamil told that the main door of the house of flats was open in the night. He was talking about that because he wanted to know the colleagues’ responses as they ignored and attacked him all the time since the beginning of his study at the university. The colleagues just looked at each other. One of the colleagues considered it as a confession. Kamil then turned to him saying:

“Tell them how you wanted to throw me out of the window.”

The colleague ran to the kitchen and called the police. When policeman got to the room asked Kamil:

“Who called us?”

Kamil said:

“The guy in the kitchen. And remember to take him away!”

The colleague in the kitchen had a lot of work with explaining why he called them. There was some physical violence in the kitchen since the policemen wanted to take the colleague with them to the police station. The colleague defended himself but the policemen really took him and the two schoolmates. The colleagues felt bitter hatred to Kamil since Kamil himself was skipped by the police.

Meanwhile, Kamil started to go to the course for getting his driving license. He got the full score at the tests. Moreover, he looked through a double trick which could lead to failing the tests. After short test of engine knowledge, Kamil and the examiner got in the car. Kamil asked:

“Where shall I go?”

“Go in the direction to your home.” Examiner answered.

Kamil went in this direction. After a few minutes, the examiner told Kamil:

“Turn it at the next crossing.”

“I turn it a bit further.” Said Kamil.

“Why didn’t you turn it?” Asked examiner.

“Because I could endanger someone. It would be a breaking of the laws. I could fail the tests if I had fulfilled your order.”

After a while, Kamil asked the examiner:

“Where should I go now?”

“Return back!”

The examiner hailed. Then, the examiner said nothing. Kamil understood that he passed the tests. Later, Kamil got a news that he failed the tests though he already had his driving license that time and though he passed the tests successfully without any mistake.

During the semester, the colleague let Kamil know his intellectual superiority by his rude behaviour. Kamil understood it and did not let him know his attitude. This outraged the colleague even more. He threatened him permanently and let him know that he is less than him even though the colleague failed in one of the exams Kamil had passed long time ago. Kamil was apathetic. He could not continue studying in spite of the fact that he passed all exams. The colleagues ill-treated and vexed him. Kamil knew that it was a punishment but he did not know the reason. He was never told anything from anyone on this. He moved to a different university in spite of the fact that he passed all exams during his study for three years hoping to have a better future there.

At new school everything changed. Kamil got self-confidence. At once, Kamil had the aptitude and knowledge to finish the school. The change of environment and experience helped him. He had excellent results again. He finished the university among the best students.

After the end of his study at the university, Kamil continued as Ph.D. student. He gained excellent results. He created a new algorithm and a new method for robust controller design. He wrote many papers and publications. He tried to do the things that were too difficult for others in order to forget the terror he was living in bestowed to him by the people he did not know. The people knew him and punished him. They did it without any reason, in Kamil's opinion. His father talked about him as a non-worker. Kamil worked to maximum limits. His father did not consider the computer work as real work but the reality was different. Kamil's father did not accept that Kamil did not feel guilty. The people accused Kamil that he was making fun out of them. Kamil was showing them their limits which he was breaking in his everyday work but the people believed his father more. Kamil understood their attitude but still did not feel guilty. He knew that he cannot clarify the history. He knew that he would suffer from the guilty he did not feel.

Kamil was under sustained slighting. He felt that other people had a reason to misbehave him and he came to the conclusion that it is the events that occurred when he was three-years old. He began to think about the incident and found out that his real parents are out of reach. Then, his father told him that he was accused of something he did not know and began to understand the other people. He figured out that the fact that he was three-years old child is an excuse only for him since his pursuers did not know his story. He did not know if he had committed a crime, however, since the police did not tell him anything. They considered him as mentally retarded. He figured out that his family left him in a trap with no exit.
